

Contents

General Editors' Preface
Acknowledgements
Introduction to the Second Edition

Section I: What is motivation?

- 1 Exploring motivation: Changing perspectives
 - 1.1 The complexity of motivation
 - 1.2 The challenge of reduction versus comprehensiveness
 - 1.3 Moving beyond linear models of motivation
- 2 Theories of motivation in psychology
 - 2.1 Key cognitive theories and constructs of motivation
 - 2.2 Motivation and context
- 3 Motivation to learn a foreign/second language: a historical overview
 - 3.1 The social psychological period
 - 3.2 The cognitive-situated period
 - 3.3 The process-oriented period
 - 3.4 From process-oriented to socio-dynamic perspectives
- 4 Motivation to learn another language: current socio-dynamic perspectives
 - 4.1 A person-in-context relational view of motivation
 - 4.2 The L2 Motivational Self System
 - 4.3 Motivation from a complex dynamic systems perspective

Section II: Motivation and language teaching

- 5 Motivation in practice: strategies and approaches
 - 5.1 From theory and research to classroom practice
 - 5.2 A framework for motivational strategies
 - 5.3 Generating and sustaining a vision for language learning
 - 5.4 Developing a motivation-sensitive teaching approach
- 6 Motivation in context: demotivating influences
 - 6.1 'Demotivation' versus 'motivation'
 - 6.2 Research on demotivation in instructional communication studies
 - 6.3 Findings in L2 motivation research
 - 6.4 Critical factors in the broader sociocultural context
 - 6.5 Concluding remarks on demotivation
- 7 Teacher motivation
 - 7.1 Conceptualising the 'motivation to teach'
 - 7.2 The motivation of L2 teachers
 - 7.3 The relationship between teacher motivation and student motivation

Section III: Researching motivation

- 8 Making motivation a researchable concept
 - 8.1 Inherent problems in motivation research
 - 8.2 Deciding on the particular aspect of motivation to focus on
 - 8.3 Selecting the criterion/dependent variable
 - 8.4 Selecting the method of inquiry
- 9 Main types and methods of motivation research
 - 9.1 Focus on groups of learners: Quantitative studies

- 9.2 Focus on individual learners: Qualitative studies
- 9.3 Mixing methodologies
- 9.4 Adopting a complex dynamic systems approach

Section IV: Resources and further information

10 The locus of motivation research: Linkages to other topics and disciplines

- 10.1 Language-learning motivation and related disciplines in the social sciences
- 10.2 The place of motivation research in applied linguistics

11 Sources and resources

- 11.1 Relevant journals and magazines
- 11.2 Databases, citation indexes, Internet resources and discussion groups
- 11.3 Sample tests and measurement instruments

References

Author index

Subject index